RN at Baystate Franklin and Tufts take a stand!
When we stand up and fight for what is fair, good, and true

Last month, as many of you already know, thousands of our members engaged in three powerful and game-changing job actions/events that are undoubtedly destined for the MNA history books:

- The strike at Baystate Franklin Medical Center in Greenfield.
- The strike at Tufts Medical Center in Boston.
- The hearing on our workplace violence prevention bill (now renamed Elise’s Law, after Elise Wilson, the RN at Southbridge’s Harrington Hospital who was brutally stabbed by a patient).

It is rare for the MNA to see three events like these line up so close together. The one-day strike at Baystate started June 26, followed by the one-day strike at Tufts on July 12, followed by the hearing on Elise’s Law on July 19. Strikes and legislative hearings both require a level of planning, prep, and organization that is almost indescribable. The same is true for the important roles elected union leaders, MNA staff members, volunteers, and supporters play in making everything come together and getting the public to actually care about these events.

But, in that regard, there was no doubt: These events put the MNA and all that it stands for — nurse activism, healthcare advocacy, quality patient care via safe nurse-to-patient limits, and worker solidarity through union affiliation — in the spotlight. In fact, for nearly a month, it was almost impossible to turn on the TV or radio, or to open a newspaper, and not see the MNA front and center.

In western Massachusetts, our nurses and their supporters were striking for the second time in five years. They were calling on management to negotiate in good faith for safer staffing, end forced overtime, and to protect health insurance benefits (see pg. 3). Both state and regional media covered every detail the strike unfolded, and the nurses’ fight and messages both resonated with the public and rallied the local community.

In Boston, our nurses took to the streets to fight for basic improvements in nurse-to-patient staffing levels and increased nursing resources, as well as market-competitive wages and basic retirement benefits/improvements (see pg. 4). Again, their fight made headlines — not just locally and regionally, but nationally as well. This strike was history-making of course, with ‘Tufts’ nurses being the first in Boston to strike in 31 years and the largest group of nurses ever to strike in Massachusetts’ history. Without doubt, that helped to pique the interests of both the public and the media, with the nurses’ earning daily news coverage on both coasts and everywhere in between. But it was the focus of those news stories that was most powerful: By striking for improved staffing limits and working conditions, the Tufts nurses were taking a stand for their patients, their practice, and their future. Again, the public and labor movement rallied around our nurses in a way that I have never before witnessed.

Next: July 19, just about 48 hours after the four-day lockout at Tufts ended. MNA members are again at bat, this time at the State House to participate in the hearing on Elise’s Law (pg. 8), which was being heard by the Committee on Public Safety and Homeland Security. This was not the first time we had filed and testified in favor of this bill, which aims to require health care employers to develop and implement individualized workplace violence prevention plans. But it was the first time we were able to name the bill in honor of a victim of the very violence that the bill aims to address.

Elise Wilson’s terrifying story resonated with all of us, because we have all known and seen workplace violence inside our facilities. This meant that Elise wasn’t just a stranger. She was our coworker. She was the nurse working down the hall. She was the nurse who comes in at change of shift and takes over caring for our patients. She was, and is, our sister, our friend, our aunt, our mother, our daughter. And never should she have been harmed, let alone harmed while at work caring for others.

Elise’s willingness, and the willingness of her family, to support the MNA in its workplace violence prevention efforts was invaluable. Her story, told through the words of her family and friends during the hearing, made it abundantly clear to the legislators in that hearing room that what we have been telling them about workplace violence inside of hospitals was real and that now is the time to do something about it. By the end of the work day on July 19, the Senate version of the bill was favorably reported out. Simultaneously, the MNA’s Facebook post highlighting the hearing and Elise’s story had gone viral, reaching more than 4.4 million people and being shared more than 20,000 times.

Again, the spotlight was ours and we used it to help others. In just 23 days, we had the entire nation paying attention to what matters most to us: safe patient care, safe patient limits, a safe workplace that is free of violence, the need for fair and equitable compensation for RNs, and the hugely important role our union solidarity plays in winning these fights.

Thank you to all who played a part in these important events, and thanks too to everyone who supported these brave nurses as they fought for what is fair, good, and true.

In solidarity,

Donna Kelly-Williams, RN
On the morning of June 26, the 200 registered nurses of Baystate Franklin Medical Center began a one-day strike for a simple but important reason: Their hospital’s parent corporation has been steadily degrading patient care and nurse working conditions. The nurses refused to stand for it any longer.

The one-day strike and accompanying lockout of MNA nurses by Baystate demonstrated the unity of the RNs and the community. Hundreds of residents from Greenfield and other Franklin County towns joined nurses on the picket line and marched to a Baystate Board of Directors’ business. Fellow MNA nurses, union brothers and sisters and local and state elected officials also stood with the BFMC nurses.

“We feel proud and strong to have so much community support as we fight for safe patient care,” said Donna Stern, co-chair of the nurses bargaining unit. “Our one-day strike was about protecting our patients and allowing nurses to live healthy, quality lives. We worked hard for months to reach an agreement with local management that properly values and respects nurses, patients and our community. Unfortunately, it was clear that decision-makers with our parent company, Baystate Health in Springfield, were unwilling to bargain in good faith on issues like nurse workload and health insurance.”

The BFMC nurses’ key outstanding issues as they held the one-day strike June 26 and as they were headed back to the bargaining table on July 21:

- Baystate management refuses to bargain over RN workload and staffing, including BFMC nurses’ call for an increase in RN staffing at the hospital to ensure safe patient assignments and an end to unwanted overtime, increased weekend work and unscheduled shifts.
- On top of that, Baystate is demanding to cut holidays, sick days and vacation time.
- Nurses are seeking to negotiate decent and affordable health insurance benefits, after Baystate eliminated two health insurance plans in the past year and a half, leaving substandard plans in place. Baystate also refuses to bargain over this issue.

Even as nurses prepared to strike, Baystate continued its practice of scrambling to provide adequate nursing care by leaving hundreds of RN shifts vacant on its schedule. Over 42 days in just one hospital unit, Baystate managers left 229 nurse shifts unfilled. These vacant shifts were on a medical-surgical schedule issued by the hospital on June 16 that covers six weeks. This is an ongoing problem. On another six-week schedule from the same unit, covering February 26 to April 8, the hospital left 179 nurse shifts unfilled.

“This problem speaks to the core of why nurses went on strike,” said Jillian Cycz, RN and junior co-chair of the BFMC RN Bargaining Committee who works on the medical-surgical unit. “We cannot provide the high quality care our patients deserve when we have too many patients at one time, are fatigued and undernourished because we must work through our breaks, and are required to stay beyond our scheduled shifts in violation of state law.”

Baystate Health responded to the nurses’ one-day strike with an unprecedented and illegal preemptive lockout of its nurses. Starting at 7 p.m. on June 25 – 11 hours before the strike was scheduled to begin – and ending three days later, Baystate refused to allow any BFMC nurses inside the hospital to care for their patients. The MNA is pursuing unfair labor practice charges around this issue and others involving Baystate’s refusal to bargain in good faith.
The “this,” of course, is the first strike by nurses in the city of Boston since 1986, and the largest strike by nurses in Massachusetts history. For five days last month — July 12, the actual strike, to July 17, the final day of a subsequent four-day lockout — these brave nurses and their countless supporters marched along the sidewalks of Washington Street with the following messages on their signs, on their lips, and in their hearts:

- Provide patients with more nurses and nursing resource so that they can receive the care they need and deserve.
- Offer market-competitive compensation so that new grads will come to work, and then stay, at Tufts.
- Don’t freeze nurses’ pensions under the guise of cost savings, especially when Tufts’ top leaders are seeing huge increases in pay and benefits. Instead, negotiate a new pension program — one that is already established and fully funded — that will save Tufts $96 million dollars, will protect senior RNs, and that will improve the retirement benefits of newer nurses.

As described above, what was at the heart of this strike was that the Tufts RNs originally went to the table asking for very reasonable contract improvements. What they got in return was an announcement from management that their number-one goal was to freeze the nurses’ long-established — and long-promised — pension plan, and that, until that goal was met, nothing else of any substance would be discussed, never mind settled.
And so began a 16-month standoff that was soon being followed by the media, local legislators, the state’s labor movement, and ultimately the nation. Through it all, the nurses at Tufts tried repeatedly to get at the heart of management’s issues with a variety of counter proposals, negotiating strategies, and job actions.

Counter Proposals
The Tufts nurses dropped proposals and offered innovative counters throughout negotiations. For example, they pulled their proposal that aimed to mandate safe patient limits in all units, and instead asked that all charge nurses on all floors be free of a patient assignment at the start of all shifts. They also asked for expanded IV and CRN teams. Management refused.

At another point, when management proposed dramatic increases in health insurance costs, the nurses countered with a more reasonable proposal and willing took on a 3 percent annual cost increase. A sacrifice for certain for the nurses, but never a sacrifice that management acknowledged.

In what could be considered the most important compromise, the nurses said they’d be open to freezing the existing pension plan as long as the nurses who were in it remained whole and that the other nurses saw an improvement in the percentage the hospital contributed to their retirement fund. Several versions of this proposal were offered to management, including one that would have saved the hospital nearly $96 million. Again, they refused.

Negotiating Strategy
From on-the-record proposals, to off-the-record proposals. From no federal mediator being involved, to calling for a federal mediator in April of 2017. From immediately sending out info-packed bulletins to members at the end of each session, to sending out more open-ended bulletins (at the suggestion of the mediator). Management refused to budge, and instead reverted to a strategy the nurses called “rearranging the deck chairs” on what was clearly becoming a “sinking ship.” Management wouldn’t add any money, benefits, or resources to their offer. But they were quite content to shuffle around — over, and over, and over again — what they already had on the table.

Job Actions and Member Activities
As the months dragged on, the nurses spearheaded a number of job actions and member activities. There was a massive letter-writing campaign to the CNO, followed by the delivery of those letters (more than 700 of them!) directly to her office door. There was the mailing to members of a holiday card that included a “bah, humbug” message regarding management’s bad behavior. There was a wildly successful online survey whose data was used to show management just how united the Tufts nurses were and how far they’d go for their patients and for a fair contract. There were t-shirts, buttons, open meetings, and a closed Facebook group that was constantly red-hot with activity. And there was a hugely successful informational picket on April 12. Still, management refused to enhance its package even though the nurses kept offering thoughtful proposals that could seal the deal.

Which left the Tufts RNs with only one remaining option: to strike.

Strike

And so they did, and there was no shortage of support, solidarity, or news coverage when they started walking the line at 7 a.m. on Wednesday, July 12.

While the 300-plus replacement nurses that management hired were attempting to hold down the fort during the strike and subsequent four-day lockout, Washington Street was jam packed with an endless parade of committed Tufts RNs and their supporters. There were daily rallies, and each got underway with a powerful rallying cry from Tufts co-chairs Barbara Tiller and Mary Havlicek Cornacchia. Local legislators, including Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, Congressman Stephen Lynch, Congressman Mike Capuano; leaders from local unions and trades groups; and members of the clergy all joined in those rallies, and, in some instances, they arrived en masse ... like on Friday, July 14, when the Boston Building Trades Council encouraged locally-based members to use their lunch break to support the Tufts nurses. Hundreds upon hundreds of Building Trades members marched up Washington Street, holding signs and banners in support of the nurses and their fight. The streets were packed, and the city police stepped in to make sure that traffic avoided the burgeoning crowds.

It was one example, among many from those five days, of just how important the Tufts nurses’ fight had become. It was no longer just about a contract, or the need for staffing improvements, or market-competitive wages, or pension protections. It was about fighting against corporate greed, and all the things that come with it: a splintered and struggling middle class, unsafe working conditions for employees in all sectors, a shrinking voice in the workplace, and general day-to-day fear of how to do the best you can — both personally and professionally — with less and less from the employer. Without knowing it, when the RNs walked out of the Medical Center at 7 a.m. on July 12, hard-working people everywhere identified with their struggle and were inspired by their determination, dedication, and passion for doing what is right.

The MNA nurses of Tufts Medical Center expect to hear from the federal mediator soon regarding when and where negotiations are to resume. But they are also expecting this: To be locking horns again with management. The next time they do, both the nurses and management will know well ahead of time that the public is, and always will be, with the nurses.
After just five negotiations sessions, the MNA bargaining committee at Health Alliance-owned Leominster Hospital settled a new two-year agreement. Highlights include:

- Improvements in health insurance for employees working 24-31 hours (from 50/50 percent split with the employer to a 60/40 percent split).
- Health Alliance (HA) insurance was a “company store,” self-insured plan requiring nurses to receive their care at the hospital or spend thousands in co-insurance to access Tier 2 and 3 hospitals, even if HA did not provide that service. All Tier 2 hospitals (UMASS and its affiliates) moved in to the Tier 1 in this contract, opening up choice and reducing out-of-pocket monies for over two-thirds of the bargaining unit.
- Won language that allows for RNs who have worked for 25 years to reduce their hours while still maintaining the same insurance benefits.
- No pre-scheduling of per diems, and a defined extra shift cancellation process that cancels per-diems prior to regular staff.
- Improvements to the workplace violence language that extends the time the hospital will pay nurses 100 percent of their salary if injured due to violence from three months to six months.
- Two percent across-the-board increase over two years.

Steward RNs Back at the Table

The MNA/Steward facilities that were part of the original limited master agreement that the MNA negotiated when Steward first entered the local health care arena in 2010 returned to the table this summer to start negotiating their next contract. Three sessions have been held so far, and in this photo the nurses are shown giving the “thumbs up” as a sign of support for their brothers and sisters at Tufts Medical Center.
Senate Version of “Elise’s Law”
Unanimously Reported out of Public Safety/Homeland Security Committee

The husband and colleagues of Elise Wilson, the RN who was stabbed while working in the emergency department at Harrington Hospital in June, testified at a State House hearing on Wednesday, July 19 in favor of “Elise’s Law,” legislation proposed by the MNA that requires health care employers to develop and implement individualized workplace violence prevention plans.

The hearing was held before the Committee on Public Safety and Homeland Security. The bill, originally named “An Act Requiring Health Care Employers to Develop and Implement Programs to Prevent Workplace Violence” (S. 1374) was filed by former Sen. James Timilty, D-Needham. An identical bill had been filed in the House (H.1007) by Rep. Denise Garlick, D-Needham. By the end of the day, the bill had been reported out favorably by the committee. It will now continue through the state’s legislative process on its way to becoming a law.

Wilson, 65, was assisting a patient on the morning of June 14 at the Southbridge hospital when, police say, he took out a knife and stabbed Wilson, causing her severe injuries that required surgery. Wilson is still recovering from the attack and was unable to attend the hearing for “Elise’s Law,” but her husband and several of her nurse colleagues were in attendance and read Wilson’s personal testimony in support of the legislation.

“The attack against Elise was vicious and left her fighting for her life,” said RN Tracy DiGregorio, who was working in the ER at the time of the assault. “Unfortunately, I cannot say violence against nurses is rare. Nurses and other health care professionals are assaulted every single day at hospitals throughout Massachusetts. We should pass ‘Elise’s Law’ right away to help stop the violence.”

“Workplace violence prevention must become the highest priority for any facility that employs healthcare workers,” said Clifton Wilson, Elise’s husband. “It’s utterly horrific and shocking that the mere act of going to work has become dangerous business for the people who take care of us when we are sick. Harrington Hospital has installed metal detectors at ER entrances. People entering are having their bags searched. Nurses and staff will have panic buttons installed on their ID badges. That’s truly what makes this Elise’s Law — not only that Elise was nearly killed on the job, but also that her hospital is putting safeguards in place so that this type of event might be prevented from happening to anyone else.”

Following the assault against Wilson, Harry Lemieux, vice president and chief information officer at Harrington HealthCare System, told the Worcester Telegram & Gazette that he was in support of the violence prevention legislation being proposed by the MNA and that Harrington Hospital had already begun instituting some prevention programs.

“It’s important for health-care organizations to protect their employees who are faced with these increasing incidents,” Lemieux told the newspaper.

Elise’s Law Needed to Prevent Escalating Violence

Nurses are assaulted on the job more than police officers and prison guards, with more than 70 percent of hospital emergency department nurses reporting being assaulted during their career. Elise’s Law will require health care employers to perform an annual safety risk assessment and, based on those findings, develop and implement programs to minimize the danger of workplace violence to employees and patients.

The bill also provides time off for health care workers assaulted on the job to address legal issues (up to seven paid days off per calendar year), allows nurses to use their health care facility address instead of their home address to handle legal issues related to an assault, and requires semiannual reporting of assaults on health care employees to district attorneys. Miko Nakagawa, an RN who was assaulted in January 2017 while working in the emergency department at Health Alliance Hospital Leominster, also testified at the hearing.

“The culture needs to change in health care,” Nakagawa said. “When violence is so widespread, it endangers not just staff but everyone at the hospital – patients and visitors included. This legislation will go a long way toward changing that culture and preventing violence. The more protection and support health care professionals have, the less violence there will be in health care.”

A recent Massachusetts Nurses Association survey of more than 220 union and non-union nurses found that more than 85 percent of nurses have been punched, spit on, groped, kicked or otherwise physically or verbally assaulted. Yet only 19 percent of nurses say their employer was supportive and tried to find solutions after they experienced violence. 76 percent said existing workplace violence policies are not enforced.

A 2015 report from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) found that between 2012 and 2014 incidents of violence “nearly doubled for nurses and nurse assistants.” Violence against health care workers accounts for nearly as many injuries as in all other industries combined, according to the Occupational Health and Safety Administration.

Top public safety officials have joined the fight to prevent health care violence and endorsed the legislation, including Worcester County District Attorney Joseph Early and Northwestern District Attorney David Sullivan.

“I believe that law enforcement best serves our citizens when we are dedicated to crime prevention,” DA Early said. “To tackle health care violence in Massachusetts, we need to understand the full scope of the problem. This legislation will enable district attorneys across the commonwealth to track assaults in health care facilities and to work with nurses, other health care professionals and their advocates to limit violence and reduce harm.”

Candidate Statement: As a practicing registered nurse and full time staff nurse, I continue to be humbled by the trust and confidence patients and our communities have in our profession. We have a tremendous obligation to protect ourselves, our fellow nurses, healthcare professionals and the patients entrusted to our care every day. MNA’s commitment to have a limit set on the number of patients a nurse would care for at one time, through legislation, contract negotiations, and a ballot initiative has brought unprecedented recognition for the MNA’s devotion to the care of all patients’ in the commonwealth. Nurses across the state are in contentious negotiations with staffing, layoffs, retirement and healthcare benefits, and restructuring, and I have been there, attending membership meetings, walking picket lines, and meeting with state and local legislators to support all nurses and healthcare professionals across the state. I have also embraced the opportunity to travel to many states across the country representing MNA as unionized nurses have stood up for their rights, and with the MNA Board of Directors have created unprecedented recognition for the MNA’s devotion to the care of all patients’ in the commonwealth. Nurses across the state are in contentious negotiations with staffing, layoffs, retirement and healthcare benefits, and restructuring, and I have been there, attending membership meetings, walking picket lines, and meeting with state and local legislators to support all nurses and healthcare professionals across the state.

Present/Past MNA Activities: For over eighteen years I have been a dedicated MNA member serving on the following; Massachusetts Nurses Association (MNA) Board of Directors Secretary, Served as a Delegate for MA at the National Nurses United (NNU) Founding Convention. Attendee at Nurse Staff Assembly annually in Washington, DC, Unit 7 Executive Board Secretary for many years and now as Labor representative, Local Taunton State Hospital Secretary/Treasurer, MNA Center for Ethics and Human Rights, MNA Bylaws Committee, Region 3 Board of Directors Treasurer, MNA Stat Team, and Serve on FAST (First Aid Support Team). It is my honor to seek the seat of Secretary for the MNA Board of Directors.

Candidate Statement: I have been an active participant in MNA’s campaigns to ensure safe staffing limits for all nurses, in all areas, and to protect staff from assaults in the workplace. I was instrumental in the establishment of the “Safety for All” Committee at my hospital to evaluate workplace violence issues, identify behaviors and triggers that can lead to assaultive behaviors, and recommend hospital wide measures to reduce assaults on staff. I have testified at several legislative hearings and forums, including meeting with District Attorneys, to help educate elected officials about the importance of dealing with the issue of Workplace Violence and establishing safe patient limits.

Being unified, well organized, and having the ability to see the big picture for the future of staff nursing is important. As healthcare providers we are the most trusted professionals and therefore are the best advocates for our patients.

Candidate Statement: I DON'T LIKE CHANGE BEING MADE FOR ME. I LIKE BEING PART OF THE CHANGE. This is why I chose to be involved with the union. A nurse cannot sit back and let someone else make decisions for them about their nursing practice. I see our nursing profession being taken over by profit corporations. The Lean mentality is changing our profession with nurses not only doing their jobs with less staff but having to incorporate ancillary staff job duties as well. The process for needed change is starting with the campaign for a ballot question for safe patient limits in the November 2018 election.

It's a much needed law that will change our practice. I plan to be there every step of the way to get this passed from door knocking, signature collection, and sign holding on the street corners. This is our union come join me. You and me will be an integral part of getting the ballot initiative passed. Nursing has to change to stop the burn out. It's time to create our own path forward. It our hospital, our union, and our profession. Let's own it and join me to create our own patient limits law.

I was a Shop Steward for Teamsters, Local 25, where, among other organizational efforts, I successfully arbitrated a “win” to return a deserving employee back to work. Presently, I work as an Aesthetic Nurse which allows me a certain amount of autonomy within the medical community. This field of Aesthetic Nursing, however, is becoming a very desired specialty and is now under attack from the medical profession who is encouraging and sponsoring legislation to try to change the “term of surgery” under the nursing scope so that nurses will not be permitted to practice Aesthetic nursing. I strongly feel that these attempts being made by physicians are economically driven. In other words, as plastic surgery has become less desirable for the consumer and other anti-aging procedures have gained in popularity, physicians want to cut into our piece of the pie. Since an onslaught of legislative bills beginning in 2006, I have been diligent in organizing my fellow Aesthetic nurses to be present at the State House representing our right to continue providing the services covered by the scope of our licenses and continue our autonomy as Aesthetic Nurses.

As an “At Large” member, I would be a significant asset to the Board of Directors. My experience in rallying individuals would insure that younger nurses join the MNA. Greater numbers translate into greater strength in protecting Nurses’ rights.

Candidate Statement: Today our nursing profession faces some of its greatest and most serious challenges. As we collectively struggle through our MNA union to protect our nursing practice and to ensure our ability to provide safe, quality patient care we need strong and determined leadership. The corporate control and domination of our healthcare system and the frightening proposed changes being pushed by the Trump administration will certainly cause even more unnecessary suffering and needless loss of lives. It is also clear that whatever deal is finally agreed on by our politicians, most of our big business funded elected officials are in agreement, that the need of corporations to make profits from healthcare should be placed before what is best for our patients. I will continue to support and strengthen MNA’s efforts to win real change by fighting for safe staffing ratios and by linking this struggle to the need to win Medicare For All. Only a single payer system can provide real solutions to the broken, wasteful and fragmented healthcare delivery system we currently endure. Growing support that is now emerging and if properly organized can bring the fundamental change we need. Nurses can provide the missing leadership we need to achieve this.

Candidate Statement: I am running for re-election to the MNA Board of Directors because I value the opportunity to continue as a leader in the professional organization and union that has made the most difference in my ability to practice effectively and safely in Nursing, the vocation I share with most of you. Now as much as ever we need to work with each other and our patients to establish safe patient limits. While I understand and respect the concerns of those who question the BOD’s past decisions and strategies, I reaffirm my votes to accept an incremental approach to patient limits. I still think it was the right thing for that time. I am just as confident that an all-out fight at the ballot is the right stand today. I believe that the lessons we have learned in our earlier efforts will help us to craft and pass the best legislation to enact and enforce safe patient limits now.

I am equally committed to the MNA and NENA agenda to forward social and economic justice, to realize healthcare as a right for all, and to join with our brothers and sisters to establish the renewal of the union movement that has consistently brought us progress in our society. I honor Nursing’s social contract and am grateful that MNA has provided the framework for me to exercise that conviction. I commit myself to listening to you and taking responsibility for my decisions on your behalf. I will continue to share in our mission whatever your decision. I ask for your confirmation and your vote.

Candidate Statement: I have been a nurse for 44 years. I have worked in acute care, long term care and presently am employed in home care for the past 19 years. I have worked in other union environments both as a union member and as a member of management therefore having an understanding of issues from both sides. I strongly feel there should be equal health care for all across the country and am therefore fearful of the new proposals from the federal government. I feel nurses are in a unique position to advocate for health care as we have a greater understanding of issues and requirements needed to provide the best affordable care for all.

I would support and work toward our common goals as identified by the organization, most recently the safe staffing levels for all hospital units. Our patients can only receive the best and safest care when our nurses have limits on their assignments. If the patients receive the proper care in our hospitals and our rehab facilities then they are better prepared and more stable for home care hopefully resulting in reduced hospital re-admissions and improved outcomes for our patients.

Candidate Statement: Nurses have the opportunity to make a strong impact on the healthcare of individuals and improvements in the education of healthcare delivery in the communities that we serve. Politically, we challenge the ability to maintain the safety of patients in a safe environment with an appropriate amount of staffing through legislation. Maintaining standards of healthcare for all individuals with various diagnoses is pertinent.

Awareness of mental health issues, rising addiction crisis, and environmental health issue standards in our communities locally is an area nursing makes an impact. The ongoing changing environment of availability of healthcare and the cost to obtain coverage is concerning. It is concerning the difficulties that the elderly, mentally challenged, developmentally delayed children and adults face when attempting to receive affordable healthcare.

Nursing is a respected profession known for the care of individuals and avocation for patient safety. If elected, I would continue to work with others to promote the values of nursing for the care of individuals for optimum health.

Candidate Statement: I see nursing as the promotion, protection and optimization of health, preventing illness and injury, facilitating healing, alleviation of suffering through the diagnosis and treatment of human response and most importantly the advocacy in the care of individuals and their families. Some of the issues I see in nursing are the unsafe staffing ratios, lack of axial staff, violence in the work place, retention issues in community hospital for younger staff, lack of in-house education opportunities, and lack of diversity in some area hospitals.
Homophobia is a Public Health Issue

Written by Edith Brous, Esq, PC, and reprinted with her permission

A 2008 article in the American Journal of Public Health noted that, “As with any minority population, the optimal provision of health care and prevention services to sexual and gender minorities requires providers to be sensitive to historical stigmatization, to be informed about continued barriers to care and the differential prevalence of specific risk factors and health conditions in these populations, and to become aware of the cultural aspects of their interactions with LGBT patients.” http://bit.ly/2uCA44g

A decade later, continuing and dangerous health care disparities illustrate the need for education of health care professionals (HCPs) regarding this community. Many cultural competency courses address racial, ethnic, and religious belief systems but ignore the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Intersex, Asexual (LGBTQIA) population. The consequence is unnecessary rates of psychiatric disorders, depression, substance use disorders, and suicide. https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3657897/. The aftermath to real human beings of HCP intolerance is homelessness, higher infection rates, and compromised access to preventive care, poverty, exploitation, bullying and violence. https://www.healthypeople.gov/2020/topics-objectives/topic/lesbian-gay-bisexual-and-transgender-health

It always saddens me and makes me angry to see otherwise intelligent and educated professionals remain unknowingly ignorant or overtly bigoted as to the public health implications of stigmatizing certain populations. Regardless of one’s personal, religious, or political views, all health care professionals should care about disease transmission & progression, population health, and human suffering. Ethical practice requires professionals to recognize their own biases to improve the health care of all patients. https://www.lgbthealtheducation.org/wp-content/uploads/Improving-the-Health-of-LGBT-People.pdf

The National LGBT Cancer Network provides useful tools for inclusive cultural competence training http://cancer-network.org/programs/cultural-competency-training/ Intolerance can take many forms. Liz Margolies, the founder and executive director of the National LGBT Cancer Network, has produced a brilliant short film demonstrating the subtle messages we send as providers. Candidate Statement: I am running for Director At-Large on the MNA Board of Directors. I feel we as nurses need a voice in the many changes that are accruing in the health field today. With all the corporate takeovers, speed-up, and new technology making major changes in the way we provide patient care, we are the voices crying out for SAFE patient care. Why are our voices the only ones?? Because we ARE the only ones who really know what is happening way down at the bedside/homecare settings. We have to make sure that our nursing practice is not compromised, because when our practice is compromised so are our patients’ lives.

I am asking for your vote, and I assure you that I am paying attention and speaking up for our patients and all of us! Thank-you, Betty Sparks RN

<td>II. Membership, Privileges, and Dues</td>
<td>Section 7: Dues a. The MNA and regional annual dues shall be determined by a majority of those members voting in a secret mail ballot. The membership must be notified in writing of any proposed change in dues at least 30 days prior to the meeting. (1) The annual dues for an MNA Member and an MNA Associate Member shall cover a 12-month period from the time of enrollment. (2) Lapse of dues payments by MNA Members and Associate Members shall be cause for immediate cessation of MNA membership. (3) MNA and regional council dues will be paid by the MNA for members who have held membership in the MNA for 40 or more years.</td>
<td>Section 7: Dues b. The MNA and regional annual dues shall be determined by a majority of those members voting in a secret mail ballot. The membership must be notified in writing of any proposed change in dues at least 30 days prior to the meeting. (1) The annual dues for an MNA Member and an MNA Associate Member shall cover a 12-month period from the time of enrollment. (2) Lapse of dues payments by MNA Members and Associate Members shall be cause for immediate cessation of MNA membership. (3) MNA and regional council dues will be paid by the MNA for members who have held membership in the MNA for 40 or more years. Add (4) MNA and regional council dues will be paid by the MNA for members actively serving as Chairs or Co-Chairs of the MNA bargaining units.</td>
<td>Proposed by MNA Board of Directors.</td>

Based on the Chairs and Co-Chairs listed for all the bargaining units, the cost of this amendment in fiscal year 2018 will be approximately $193,700. In subsequent years, changes in dues based on contract settlements and step raises will impact the annual costs. It is anticipated that MNA will do monthly, rather than annual, calculation of the dues of individual Chairs and Co-Chairs.
Notice to members and non-members regarding MNA agency fee status

In private employment under the National Labor Relations Act

This notice contains important information relating to your membership or agency fee status. Please read it carefully.

Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act gives employees these rights:

- To organize
- To form, join or assist any union
- To bargain collectively through representatives of their choice
- To act together for other mutual aid or protection
- To choose not to engage in any of these protected activities

You have the right under Section 7 to decide for yourself whether to be a member of MNA. If you choose not to be a member, you may still be required to pay an agency fee to cover the cost of MNA’s efforts on your behalf. If you choose to pay an agency fee rather than membership dues, you are entitled to attend union meetings; you cannot vote on ratification of contracts or other agreements between the employer and the union; and certain lobbying efforts. MNA has established the following procedure for non-members who wish to exercise their right to object to the accounting of chargeable expenditures:

1. When to object

Employees covered by an MNA union security clause will receive this notice of their rights annually in the MassNurse. If an employee wishes to object to MNA’s designation of chargeable expenses, he or she must do so within 30 days of receipt of this notice. Receipt shall be presumed to have occurred no later than three days after the notice is mailed to the employee’s address as shown in MNA’s records.

Employees who newly become subject to a contractual union security clause after September 1, or who otherwise do not receive this notice, must file any objection within 30 days after receipt of notice of their rights.

MNA members are responsible for full membership dues and may not object under this procedure. MNA members who resign their membership after September 1 must object, if at all, within 30 days of the postmark or receipt by MNA of their individual resignation, whichever is earlier.

Objections must be renewed each year by filing an objection during the appropriate period. The same procedure applies to initial objections and to renewed objections.

2. How to object

Objections must be received at the following address within the 30-day period set forth above: Massachusetts Nurses Association Fee Objections 340 Turnpike Street Canton, MA 02021 Objections not sent or delivered to the above address are void.

To be valid, objections must contain the following information:

- The objector’s name
- The objector’s address
- The name of the objector’s employer
- The non-member’s employee identification number

Objections must also be signed by the objector.

Objections will be processed as they are received. All non-members who file a valid objection shall receive a detailed report containing an accounting and explanation of the agency fee. Depending on available information, the accounting and explanation may use the previous year’s information.

3. How to challenge MNA’s accounting

If a non-member is not satisfied that the agency fee is solely for chargeable activities, he or she may file a challenge to MNA’s accounting. Such a challenge must be filed within 30 days of receipt of MNA’s accounting. Receipt shall be presumed to have occurred no later than three days after the notice is mailed to the employee’s address as shown in MNA’s records.

Challenges must be specific, and must be made in writing. Challenges must be received by MNA at the same address listed above in section 2 within the 30-day period to be valid. Challenges not sent or delivered to that address are void.

Valid challenges, if any, will be submitted jointly to an impartial arbitrator appointed by the American Arbitration Association. MNA will bear the cost of such a consolidated arbitration; challengers are responsible for their other costs, such as their travel expenses, lost time, and legal expenses, if any. Specifically challenged portions of the agency fee may be placed in escrow during the resolution of a challenge. MNA may, at its option, waive an objector’s agency fee rather than provide an accounting or process a challenge.

Notice of Dues Increase to Members

This notice is to inform all MNA members and Agency Fee payers that per MNA dues policy the maximum and minimum rates of dues have been reviewed for adjustment. Based on this review effective July 1, 2017, the new minimum monthly dues rate will be $69.42. The maximum monthly dues rate will be $87.90. All associated dues categories or fees will be adjusted based on these new rates. For more information, contact the MNA’s Division of Member Services at 781-821-4625 or send email to membership@mnarn.org.
Immediate Actions You Should Take to Protect Yourself Following a Work-Related Injury

Attorney Charles Donoghue, and Chris Pontus from the MNA’s health and safety division, have been teaching workers’ compensation and OSHA standards and requirements for health care workers within the MNA’s labor school for more than ten years. Both Charlie and Chris have seen a systematic persistent and determined cutting of benefits allowed for workers who have injured themselves due to accidents, assaults, and some types of environmental exposures. Twenty years ago, nurses were treated with great deference when injured at work. Given their professional standing in the medical community, dedication and commitment to their patients and willingness to perform their duties even with a nagging injury, employers were never concerned about a potential workers’ compensation claim.

Over the course of the ensuing years that dynamic has changed dramatically with more and more nurses coming to understand that even though the profession continues to represent the single most important link between a patient’s successful treatment and speedy recovery, they have become just a number to their employers. While safe staffing has become the hallmark of the MNA’s fight for its membership and more importantly the patients they treat, those who monitor the economics of the daily operation of a medical facility have chosen to unfairly target the professional nursing staff. Dealing with a potential workers’ compensation claim, vigilance and the prompt reporting of any injury is a nurse’s best friend.

Today it is critical that any injury suffered at work, no matter how minor it may seem at the time, be reported to the individual designated by the facility to accept that information. The days of working through a back, shoulder or lower extremity pain or any other type of injury and not reporting that incident are long since passed. The failure to report to the emergency room, occupational health or your own medical provider after suffering an injury could work against you if you eventually miss time from work. The failure to promptly report a work injury or to seek medical attention will become a red flag in a subsequent claim, with the insurer for the hospital and/or the occupational health department or human resources using those omissions as a baseline defense, questioning the validity of a claim. Document, document, document: it is important that a summary of the facts surrounding the actual happening of the injury, a notation addressing exactly where and when it occurred and identifying any witnesses, along with the name of manager the injury was reported to, be prepared as soon as reasonably possible. In addition, requesting and retaining a copy of any and all treatment notes, tests or occupational health examination reports will prove invaluable if and when a claim must be filed.

Nurses are people of action, responding to emergencies in a calm and deliberate manner, expecting that an intended outcome will result. The litigation process and the potential of becoming involved in a prolonged worker’s compensation case runs counter to the training and experience of a professional nurse. The ultimate goal of an injured worker is to utilize every possible tool available to ensure that your legal rights are protected and more importantly that your health and ability to perform your duties are not placed in jeopardy. It is sad to say, but in most cases, your employer is more concerned with the economic impact a workers’ compensation claim will have on the bottom line.

If you have difficulty submitting a workers’ compensation claim with your employer, we strongly suggest calling a workers’ compensation attorney who does practice in this type of law. Following the above suggestions will allow you to become your strongest advocate if and when you are faced with a work injury.

If you have any questions or concerns you can email or call Chris Pontus and/or Charles Donoghue. Chris can be reached at cpontus@mnarn.org or called at 781-830-5754. Attorney Charles Donoghue can be reached at chasjd4@aol.com or called at 617-901-8860.
Recognizing and Supporting a Nurse Colleague with Impaired Practice
This program will discuss the important issue of narcotic diversion. Diversion prevalence, recognition, and methods for prevention will be explored. The best practice standards for safe handling of narcotics will be presented. The program will conclude with information on resources to support a nurse with a substance use problem as well as the nurses' role in safeguarding patient care. Contact hours for this activity will be awarded until January 1, 2018.

Accepting, Rejecting and Delegating a Work Assignment
The purpose of this activity is to provide a framework for decision-making based on the Massachusetts Nurse Practice Act and other regulatory agencies to safeguard patient care. Contact hours will be awarded until March 31, 2018.

Program Requirements
To successfully complete a program and receive contact hours, you must read the entire program, take and pass the Post-Test and complete the Program Evaluation. To pass the Post-Test, you must achieve a score of 80% or above. Your certificate of completion will be available immediately, from the “My Account Page,” upon successful completion of the program.

Accreditation
The Massachusetts Nurses Association is accredited with distinction as a provider of continuing nursing education by the American Nurses Credentialing Center’s Commission on Accreditation.

Contact Hours
Contact hours will be awarded by the Massachusetts Nurses Association.

The following pages are dedicated to supplying you with information about our upcoming fall continuing education classes.
Psychiatric Competencies for the Non-Psych RN

Nurse Burnout: That Ain’t Just Smoke, That’s YOU! How to Avoid Becoming the Human Flashpoint

Description: The goal of this program is to help nurses prevent, identify and manage compassion fatigue. Nursing is a hard emotional, physical, and spiritual work, but it is also very rewarding. Tension and turmoil come within the territory of being a nurse. The stresses and strains of working in the nursing industry can take their toll on even the strongest personality. From persistent patients to strict regulations, nurses are constantly facing challenges both big and small, physical and emotional. At some point, it is more than likely that the pressures of your job will get to you and you will wonder, “Is it worth it?” Burnout, also known as compassion fatigue, can get the best of you, but only if you let it.
