The effort to pass safe staffing legislation has never had more momentum. H.1282, MNA legislation that requires minimum RN-to-patient ratios in Massachusetts hospitals, has 100 legislative sponsors and more than 55 consumer and advocacy group endorsers. The first step towards the bills’ passage begins on Wednesday, June 18—the day when the Legislature’s health care committee will hold a public hearing on the MNA’s proposed bill. It is essential that nurses have a strong presence at the hearing.

“We’ve come so far in this fight for the best safe-staffing legislation,” said MNA President Karen Higgins. “This is an important opportunity to demonstrate to legislators how important safe staffing is to nurses and to patients. We need a sea of nurses in scrubs to rally behind the MNA’s Quality Patient Care/Safe RN Staffing legislation. Our motto is clear and direct: safe RN staffing saves lives.”

The MNA has scheduled a “Safe Staffing Saves Lives Rally” in the Statehouse at 9:30 a.m. to draw media attention to our cause. Details about the hearing that members need to know include:

- Scheduled to take place in Room A-2 (hearings are from 10 a.m. – 1 p.m.)
- Nurses should dress in scrubs
- Buses will be provided. For details contact Dolores Neves at 781-830-5722 or by e-mail at dneves@mnarn.org.
- Throughout the day, the MNA will organize opportunities for nurses to visit their legislators so that they can share personal accounts of how safe staffing will improve patient care.

The MNA’s campaign to pass safe-staffing legislation is aggressive, but it cannot succeed without your active participation. It will not happen without you! The MNA needs every RN to write, call and visit with his or her elected officials about this legislation. If a legislator doesn’t hear from you and don’t pass H.1282 as a result, it is not the fault of the elected official—it is our fault. Nurses are responsible to the needs and concerns of their constituents. If you don’t take the time and effort to educate them on an issue, they will not be able to serve you well. Please use the “5 steps to pass safe staffing legislation” guide that is included on Page 6 to help you in contacting your state senator and representative.

And please attend the hearing on June 18. The success of safe staffing and the health of patients depend on it.

Staff nurses cite better RN-to-patient ratios as solution to nursing shortage

A study reported in last month’s issue of the American Journal of Nursing shows that more than 85 percent of nurses surveyed believe limiting the number of patients each nurse cares for is the most important solution to a growing staffing crisis in America’s hospitals.

More than 80 percent of the nurses surveyed report having less time to spend with patients and they identified increased workload and burnout from these conditions as the key reasons for nurses leaving the hospital bedside. In fact, similar to previous studies, this study again found that nearly one in three nurses is considering leaving their position in the next five years.

The study provides further strong evidence to support efforts by a growing coalition of nurses and patient advocates who are seeking to pass legislation to regulate RN-to-patient ratios in Massachusetts hospitals, according to the Massachusetts Nurses Association.

“The scientific evidence is clear and overwhelming: when nurses have too many patients, patients’ lives are at jeopardy,” said MNA President Karen Higgins, RN. “Passage of this legislation is key to improving care to our patients and to creating conditions that will retain and recruit the nurses we need to provide safe patient care.”

In addition to safe ratios, fully 82 percent of those surveyed responded that increased pay was a top solution to the nurse staffing shortage. Other highly rated solutions include greater autonomy and control for staff nurses (66 percent) and safer working conditions (65 percent).

The study’s conclusions mirror the results of similar surveys conducted in recent years that also identified low RN-to-patient ratios as key to protecting patients, preventing complications and stemming the flood of nurses away from the hospital bedside due to unsafe workloads mandated by the hospital industry over the last decade.

The study also found that only half the nurses surveyed felt the hospital industry was doing a good job addressing the shortage and nurses thought many of the strategies being employed—including offering sign-on bonuses, hiring temporary nurses and foreign nurses, and mandating overtime—were ineffective.

In addition, while hospital industry reports often cite the need to provide nurses with highly flexible scheduling as a key solution to the shortage, nurses in this survey did not identify this as a problem. Again, nurses reported that they were most concerned about their lack of control over RN-to-patient ratios.

Currently, the American Hospital Association reports that 126,000 RN positions are going unfilled. According to the Health Resources and Services Administration, there could be a deficit of 808,000 nurses by 2020.

Coalition to Protect Massachusetts Patients formed to fight for safe staffing

Nurses are not alone in their desire to see the legislature pass legislation to regulate RN-to-patient ratios in Massachusetts hospitals. The general public and more than 55 consumer advocacy groups have rallied behind the MNA’s Quality Patient Care/Safe RN Staffing legislation.

To date, more than 55 prestigious and powerful organizations have endorsed the bill and joined a newly formed Coalition to Protect Massachusetts Patients, a group that will push for passage of this desperately needed legislation.

“As the scientific evidence grows, and as nurses talk to the public about the relationship between proper RN staffing and quality patient care, the support for this long overdue measure continues to build,” said Karen Higgins, president of MNA.

“The MNA is committed to working with these groups and the public to convince the legislature that they need to act and act now to ensure patients the care they deserve. Our motto is clear and direct: safe RN staffing saves lives,” Higgins said.

Among the groups signing onto the bill are: Ad Hoc Committee to Defend Health Care, AIDS Action Committee, American Diabetes Association of Greater Boston, the Boston Chapters of the American Heart Association, American Association of Retired Persons, American Cancer Society, American Federation of Teachers, National Education Association, National Association of Retired Federal Employees, New England Health Care Employees Union, National Nurses United, Massachusetts Action Network for Gun Control, Massachusetts Coalition to Defend Reproductive Rights, Massachusetts Conference of Women’s Organizations, Massachusetts Women’s Political Caucus, Massachusetts Teachers Association, Massachusetts Women’s Political Caucus and Massachusetts Women’s Political Task Force.

Nurses’ Guide to Single Payer Reform

MNA will join thousands of workers for Health Care Action Day on June 5

A coalition of health care, labor and consumer advocates, including the MNA, is organizing a “Health Care Action Day” on June 6 to advocate for universal health care reform.

One of the biggest problems facing employers and workers is double-digit increases in the cost of health insurance premiums. In the vast majority of workplaces that are non-union, the burden of medical cost inflation gets shifted from management to workers unilaterally, causing financial pain for wage earners but little pain for their employers. Payroll deductions for premium contributions and out-of-pocket payments for treatment are increased whether workers like it or not because, without a union, workers lack any say in the matter.

For the few workers lucky enough to be united in a union, bargaining with employers over this issue has become as difficult as it was during the 1980s and early 1990s, when insurance premiums rose by similar amounts.

In the last 18 months, state workers, school teachers, janitors, manufacturing workers, food processors, and truck builders have all been involved in health care-related strikes or lock-outs. The most high-profile dispute was when 18,000 employees of General Electric walked out for two days last January over that company’s decision to unilaterally raise premiums. Later this summer, major regional or national contracts in the telephone and auto industries will be up for re-negotiation. If management tries to reduce employer-paid coverage for the hundreds of thousands of workers and retirees at GE, GM, Chrysler, Ford, Verizon, and Quest, even bigger confrontations lie ahead.

The link to health care reform

How workers respond to this bargaining challenge has important implications for the future of health care reform. The actions of organized labor – on the job, at the negotiating table, and, where necessary, on the picket line – can become a popular rallying point for people ill-served by our current system of private, job-based medical benefits. The struggle over “who pays” for health care is also an opportunity for unions to show leadership on the non-union majority of working people.

Why is single payer less expensive?

The single payer system is less expensive because, with a multi-payer system, each insurance company and payment source needs to be billed. Each insurance plan needs to be analyzed to check if a procedure is covered. Each company also pays its CEOs and top administrators large salaries. They pay for advertising, marketing, lobbying and other wasteful administrative costs.

At the same time, each doctor, hospital, nursing home or pharmacy needs to hire legions of billers, plan analysts and reviewers to accommodate the multiple payers. In addition, each employer offering health benefits needs to expand its human resource department to spend time negotiating with a multitude of insurance plans for rates and coverage.

It is estimated by many national and local studies that up to 60 percent of administrative costs would be saved if a single-payer system were implemented. Two studies commissioned by the Massachusetts Medical Society in 1998 found that under a single-payer system, enough money would be saved in Massachusetts to enable the state to provide comprehensive health coverage to all residents.

How would the public agency collect the money?

Perhaps a public insurance fund could be created to collect current premiums on a fair formula or tax that reflects current spending. It would be a quick fix called “managed care” which included cost saving limits on employees’ choice of doctors, hospitals, or treatment options. Now managed care is no longer able to restrain health care costs and premium increases are expected to average 15 percent this year. Once again, management wants labor to foot the bill or get by with fewer benefits.

Thousands of retirees who thought they had health care coverage for the rest of their lives have since lost that coverage, particularly among companies who blame such “legacy costs” for landing them in or near Chapter 11. Twenty-five years ago, more than 80 percent of all medium- and large-sized firms offered medical benefits to their pensioners. Now only 40 percent do – and one-fifth of those firms have eliminated such benefits for new hires. More than 2 million seniors have also recently been tossed out of their HMO plans.

The political challenge facing union members today is how to broaden the defense of negotiated benefits, for both active and retired workers, when a record number of Americans – as many as 75 million at some point during the last two years – have no coverage at all.

How you can help

Health Care Action Day is a way for union members, retirees, and health care reform supporters to help frame the struggle against cost shifting broadly, so that it won’t be viewed as just another special interest fight against give-backs by workers who already enjoy better-than-average coverage. By linking our resistance to larger political demands (i.e. “Health Care for All...Not cuts in benefits or services”), the fight against concessions has the potential for attracting broad community support and building a powerful movement for real health care reform.

Advocating for universal health care reform will energize our movement and help give a voice to working people who show their support for a plan that covers everyone, saves money by eliminating bureaucratic inefficiency, and is publicly financed.

Getting as many people as possible to take action on the same day will give working people an opportunity to show their support for universal coverage and to increase pressure on employers and the state for immediate action.

Executive director’s column

Nurses Week, May 6-12 will soon be upon us, which is the time when nurses are recognized for their contributions to health care. Traditionally, the MNA has its annual lobbying day on May 6. However, this year on May 6 we will shift the focus of lobby day to students. We will bring student nurses into the Statehouse to teach them about the importance of political action for nurses and to have them make visits to their local legislators.

While this is an important event during Nurses’ Week, the MNA is also focusing its efforts on another date—June 18—as the most important date for nurses in Massachusetts, and it is the date the entire nursing community needs to rally around.

On June 18, the Joint Committee on Health Care will hear testimony on H.1282, An Act Ensuring Quality Patient Care and Safe RN Staffing, which is our bill to regulate RN-to-patient ratios in acute care hospitals in Massachusetts. This is a major step in the process to winning passage of this legislation. This bill has been filed in the past, but for this legislative session, it has been modified to include specific ratios for every floor and every unit in the hospital setting, with an acuity system to improve ratios based on the patient needs. It is our firm belief, substantiated by highly credible research, surveys and polling of a number of groups, that this legislation will improve the untenable working conditions of nurses and, as a result, will bring nurses back to the bedside who have left, help us keep the new nurses just starting out, and hold on to the experienced nurses who have been hanging in there waiting for this resolution. And most importantly, passage of H.1282 will bring back safe quality care to our patients wherever they may be hospitalized in the commonwealth. Prior to June 18, I encourage you to contact our Governmental Affairs Department at 781-830-5725 to set up a meeting with your local legislator or write a letter or make a phone call asking them to support the passage of H.1282.

While efforts to pass the RN-to-patient legislation move forward you will be listening to radio ads, reading newspaper ads and in general seeing press coverage about the ongoing budget debate in which hospitals are clamoring for more money in order to provide care to those tossed off of MassHealth, as well as those who never had MassHealth and are without health care coverage. This argument has been ongoing. A variety of reasons have fueled the Hospital Associations’ request for additional money. The hospitals utilized previous radio ads for improved reimbursement citing the need to recruit more nurses. The theme of a nursing shortage as a tool to achieve additional monies seemed to have little effect on the actual recruitment and retention of nurses. Today the hospitals are using the cuts in MassHealth and the uncompensated care pool’s funding inadequacies as leverage for improving funding to hospitals. There is no doubt that as an organization the MNA has grave concerns regarding the general health policy positions of the hospital association and certainly we have questioned their priorities in the utilization of current and past funding sources. But having said that, there is also no doubt the current health policy is an abject failure. Clearly, while the long-term solution is no doubt a single-payer health system which provides all with coverage without regard to employment status or employer benefit packages. Because it’s a singular system with a single set of rules and minimized administration, you save $16 billion in bureaucratic waste that would be better spent making sure 400,000 employed uninsured Massachusetts residents do have access to health care. But while we wait for the health care trust policy to be adopted, we will need to provide funding to assure the most vulnerable do not continue to be thrown out of health coverage leaving them without access to necessary prescriptions and treatments.

The simple fact is that the current administration made a campaign promise not to raise taxes while assuring no loss of core services—and that campaign promise cannot be achieved. No amount of rhetoric is going to change the simple fact that there is not enough income or reserves for this state to balance the budget without gouging core services. The rainy day reserves have now been depleted and no new income stream can offset the drastic deficit we face. While the public may be skeptical of the legislature’s spending practices, this does not change the reality that core services currently slated to be cut by the governor will have to be supported and funded by the Legislature. Leadership requires truth-telling especially when it is unpopular.

And the simple truth is you can’t maintain core services to those most in need without new sources of revenue. As nurses we have a high degree of credibility and it is incumbent upon us to inform our families and neighbors of what the impact of these budget cuts will be in terms of real harm to everyday people. Its time to reverse the tax cuts and stop the bleeding and as we move to ameliorate the budget situation we should also raise our voices in expectation that long-term strategies be developed to deal with the crumbling health care system.

anger to fear—and often at the same time. According to Carpenter, trying to help people cope with their feelings and giving them information on where to get continued support is essential. “Offering this type of support to someone in need is invaluable, and I feel lucky that I was able to do this for those hurt by the West Warwick fire.”

Carpenter became involved with the Red Cross following the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center. She had been working as a nurse and she had spent considerable time working in the mental health sector, but it was 9/11 that reminded her that her skills were needed in the volunteer community as they were in the professional world. Her credentials for becoming a volunteer with the Disaster Mental Health Team were impeccable and included experience in grief counseling, working as an educator in psychiatric nursing and practicing as a family nurse practitioner. “I knew that after 9/11 the Red Cross wanted to enable communities to become more self-sufficient in terms of emergency response,” she explained. “This is my way of helping my community achieve this goal.”

According to Carpenter, she has come to realize volunteerism by nurses is invaluable. “We are often better trained for those most in need. And in times like these, our expertise is desperately needed.”

For information on volunteer opportunities with the Red Cross online at www.redcross.org.

The idea behind the Disaster Mental Health Program at the Red Cross refers to the fact that it is a voluntary program that is designed to be activated during a major emergency. The program provides mental health services to victims of disasters, often in response to a direct appeal from a government or agency. The program is designed to provide immediate and short-term mental health services to victims of disasters, and does not provide psychological counseling for long-term issues.

When a disaster occurs, the Red Cross Mental Health Program is activated, and volunteers are deployed to provide mental health services to victims. This includes providing emotional support, counseling, and psychological assessment. The program is designed to be a short-term response to a disaster, and is not intended to provide long-term psychological support.

MNA president blasts governor’s budget cuts at hearing

In an effort to force the Romney administration to take a hard look at its proposed budget for 2004 and the devastating blow it will send to Massachusetts’ most vulnerable citizens, Karen Higgins, MNA president and RN, recently testified before the Joint Committee on Human Services, Elderly Affairs and Health Care, saying that the governor must find “a humane way of dealing with the current budget crisis.”

Higgins, who was asked to provide the committee with the perspective of front-line nurses at the March 19 hearing in Holyoke, offered sharp criticism of the Romney budget and drove home the point that the MNA believes the proposed cuts to MassHealth, School Health, Prescription Advantage and numerous disease prevention/control programs, as well as the planned closure of The Fernald Center and Worcester State Hospital, will leave the health care “safety net” for the state’s elderly, poor and mentally ill in tatters.

“From the perspective of front-line nurses,” Higgins said, “the health and human service system in the commonwealth has been under-funded and in crisis for years. Further cuts will only lead to a dramatic deterioration in the quality of care for those patients most in need.” Higgins added that the time for budget cutting in these areas is over and that revenue generation must become part of the debate.

Healthcare advocates from across the state have gone on the offensive since Romney’s plan was announced in late January, saying that the cuts are shortsighted, misguided and devastating to children, seniors, the mentally ill and the disabled. Additionally, the cuts have repeatedly been called “economically wasteful” and many, including Higgins, expect to see only one result: patients receiving more costly care in already overcrowded emergency rooms. “The governor has broken his promise not to cut core services,” Higgins said. “Health care is not just a core service—it is a safety net, a matter of life and death for our most vulnerable citizens. The governor has taken an axe to the very programs that provide care to those most at risk. Governor Romney’s proposal will only result in people suffering more serious complications that require more costly care.”

Programs slated to be cut under Romney’s plan include:

- Prescription Advantage: A prescription drug coverage initiative for seniors. Higgins testified that, “Nurses on the front-line have seen the ill effects of seniors who cannot afford prescriptions.”
- MassHealth: A program that provides health coverage to approximately one in six low-income adults and one in four low-income children. Some areas covered under MassHealth include prenatal care, prescription drugs and some dental and nursing home care. Higgins testified that, “MassHealth is needed in order to maintain a stable health care system. It brings the state billions of federal dollars that we can’t afford to lose and it ensures that almost all children in Massachusetts have quality health care. MassHealth improves the health of families and communities across the commonwealth.
- School Nursing: A program that funds the state’s highly successful Enhanced School Health Initiative, which includes school nurses in cities and towns where children lack access to adequate health care. Higgins testified, “School nurses across the state are receiving layoff notices during a time when school-based clinics are often the only source of health care for some children.”
- Mental Health and Mental Retardation: Programs that provide the core services necessary to meet the needs of the mentally ill and mentally retarded. Higgins testified that, “The state’s mental health system has been in shambles for years. We have mentally ill patients roaming the streets or being boarded for days in hospital emergency rooms because we lack beds and staff to care for them. We have severely dangerous patients being housed with geriatric and pediatric patients in hospitals with lack of proper resources to care for them. We have nurses being physically assaulted on a regular basis because of a lack of security and resources to take care of violent patients. The system is in crisis, yet the governor wants to gut these programs more. It shows a lack of understanding for the needs of the mentally ill in this state.”
- Worcester State Hospital: Home to more than 131 of the state’s most psychiatrically disabled patients. Higgins testified that, “There are three basic reasons why the administration’s plan to close the hospital is flawed: the impact on patients currently at Worcester State who would be displaced, the impact on acute psychiatric units, emergency rooms, and those patients who will require long-term hospitalization; and the impact on public safety posed by the rapid de-institutionalization of the psychiatrically disabled.”
- The Fernald Center: The oldest facility for the mentally retarded in the western hemisphere and currently the home of more than 300 of the state’s most severely retarded citizens. Higgins testified that, “Despite years of requests from advocacy groups, the Department of Mental Retardation has never produced any data or evidence that supports the theory that closing state facilities for the retarded saves taxpayer dollars.”
- Higgins added that a “one-size-fits-all” approach to caring for the retarded does not work, and that Fernald residents are mentally retarded people with the most extreme medical and emotional needs.
- “The cost associated with the care of a Fernald patient is greater than the cost of caring for a more mildly retarded patient. As a result, the cost will follow a Fernald patient forever—regardless of location and residence. Closing Fernald will not help solve the budget crisis.”

Higgins closed her testimony by referring to the Weld administration’s attempt to eliminate a number of human service centers and hospitals in the 1990s with no study or evidence. During that crisis, the legislature successfully included language in the budget that directed a study and legislative approval prior to any closures. Higgins requested that the Joint Committee on Human Services, Elderly Affairs and Health Care take the same course of action with Romney’s current initiative.

Bureau of Labor Statistics data suggest that this estimate could go as high as one million nurses by 2010. Direct links have been made between adequate nursing care in hospitals and better patient outcomes.

The national poll of 600 hospital staff nurses providing direct nursing care was conducted by Lake Snell Perry & Associates. To view the results, visit www.LSPNurse.org.

“Nurses are very clear about what needs to be done to protect patients and to solve the shortage. They need safe ratios,” Higgins said. “It’s time for the industry and for policy makers to hear what the front-line nurses are saying and to act on what the evidence makes clear—safe staffing saves lives, and in the context of this study, it will end the shortage.”

MNA legislative briefings for safe RN staffing

The MNA Department of Legislation & Government Affairs, the Congress on Health Policy and Legislation, and MNA members are working together to set up legislative briefings across the state. These briefings, entitled “Safe Staffing Saves Lives,” are designed as a forum for MNA members and our supporters to meet with local legislators and inform them of the critical staffing issues that nurses face in health care facilities everyday and to help us win their support for Safe RN staffing legislation.

Safe RN staffing legislation will regulate RN-to-patient ratios in all acute care hospitals in Massachusetts. If you would like to attend a legislative briefing or schedule one in your area, see the Legislation & Government Affairs page at www.massnurses.org or call 800-882-2056, x725.

An interview with state President Robert Travaglini

The Massachusetts Nurse recently sat down with state Senate President Robert Travaglini. Travaglini is serving his sixth term in the Massachusetts Senate and was elected president by his colleagues in January. Travaglini represents the 1st Suffolk and Middlesex District, which includes wards in Boston, Cambridge, Revere and North Easton.

Travaglini has built a strong reputation fighting for the needs and concerns of the poor and underserved. His priorities include access to high quality health care, affordable child care and after school opportunities, children’s health and development, improving public education, transportation, homeless services, community development, public safety and constituent services.

A former Boston city councilor, Travaglini has served as Senate chairman of the Children’s Legislative Caucus and is the former majority whip of the Senate.

MassNurse: Congratulations on your election as state Senate president. Please tell us how you foresee your new position as leader of the state Senate.

Travaglini: I’m very excited and a bit overwhelmed, to be honest. I am grateful for the confidence and the support that my fellow colleagues have given me, serving in this new capacity. As Senate president, I have vowed to empower every one of my colleagues and to promote a “team concept” in the Senate. One way to do that is by drawing on the individual expertise, background and interests of each senator. I look forward to turning that promise into a reality over the next few months. It is also a wonderful opportunity for me to serve not just the people of my district but every district across the Commonwealth.

MassNurse: What issues do you believe will dominate this legislative session?

Travaglini: The budget, first and foremost. We’ve got our work cut out for us over the next 12 to 18 months and there will be a lot of difficult decisions to make. Nobody comes to Beacon Hill looking to cut programs and search for new revenue sources, but these are the necessary steps that we must take to keep our promises.

MassNurse: How does your background as a municipal official help prepare you to be an effective state legislator?

Travaglini: Having a chance to make a difference in people’s lives day-to-day basis.

MassNurse: What would you tell the nurses who are reading this column about the importance of building a relationship with their local legislators?

Travaglini: I cannot say enough about the need for constituents to directly engage their elected officials on matters that concern them. Throughout my tenure I have always kept an open-door policy, which allows me to keep an honest outlook and fresh perspective on legislator issues. Those who can make their case, regardless of who they are, get my attention and in turn help shape my position. In this context, nurses should actively participate with those who will ultimately shape the health and vitality of their profession. Without their input we don’t get the whole story.

MassNurse: What do you enjoy most about your work as a state legislator?

Travaglini: Having a chance to make a difference in people’s lives day-to-day basis.

MassNurse: What is your proudest success as a state legislator?

Travaglini: I’ve had the good fortune to have many successes serving as a state legislator. I am proud of a legislative record that ranges from authorship of the braille literacy bill, the diabetes reduction bill and hospital interpreter services bill – all of which have been signed into law. I have also been proud of my work focusing upon children’s issues, including passage of the child hunger and the expansion of childcare tax credits. But most importantly is the sense of accomplishment you feel in addressing the “bread and butter” issues that affect residents the most, such as affordable housing or health care.

On the day the House of Representatives released its version of the state budget, a coalition of citizens, community members, family members of patients, nurses, allied health professionals, mental health advocates and local and state political leaders held a candlelight vigil to save Worcester State Hospital—the nation’s oldest psychiatric facility and one that provides services to patients from throughout central Massachusetts and from as far away as the New York border. The vigil was held on Wednesday, April 23 immediately outside the entrance to Worcester State and it drew a crowd of more than 150 supporters.

Among those who contributed to the vigil was state Rep. Vincent A. Pedone (D-Worcester)—who successfully introduced an amendment to the House budget preventing the facility’s closure—and Sen. Harriet Chandler (D-Worcester). Chandler, who also attended the vigil, promised to continue to work on behalf of Worcester State while the Senate develops its version of the state budget.

Governor Romney had proposed closing Worcester State Hospital in his original budget, but advocates have argued that the facility provides valuable, comprehensive mental health services to patients and families struggling to manage the most acute and debilitating forms of mental illness. In response, the Coalition to Save Worcester State Hospital was formed to wage a campaign to save the facility. The coalition is hoping to gain additional support in the fight to keep Worcester State’s doors open.

Please show your support for the Coalition, for Worcester State and for the mentally ill by calling your legislators and saying “no” to the proposed closing.

State Sen. Harriet Chandler offers words of support and encouragement.

In a recent poll of Massachusetts voters, more than 75 percent supported legislation to regulate RN-to-patient ratios. Those same voters said they would back modest cost increases if needed to implement safe staffing. In just one week in May 2002, 80,000 Bay State residents signed petitions supporting RN-to-patient ratios.
Safe Staffing Saves Lives

Pass H.1282

- Understaffing of registered nurses is dangerous to patients. Mistakes, errors and complications become more likely when nurses are asked to take care of too many patients at once.
- A study of six million patients reported in the New England Journal of Medicine shows that patients without adequate nursing attention are more likely to die or suffer serious complications: the more nurses per patient the better the medical outcomes.
- The Journal of the American Medical Association reported that in a study of 232,000 surgical patients the higher the patient-to-nurse ratio, the more likely there will be a death or serious complication. Each additional patient above four that a nurse cared for produced a 7 percent increase in mortality. If a nurse is caring for eight patients instead of four, there is a 31 percent increase in mortality.
- The fact that nurses are burned out from high patient loads is causing them to leave the profession. One in three registered nurses under the age of 30 say they are planning to leave nursing within the next year.

Five things you can do to pass safe staffing legislation

Attend the safe staffing hearing on June 18 at the Statehouse

Please attend the Health Care Committee hearing on MNA’s safe staffing legislation. This is our chance to show the committee and other legislators the incredible support there is for RN-to-patient ratios. The MNA needs hundreds of nurses dressed in scrubs and its allies at the Statehouse to send the message that it is time for action on RN-to-patient ratios! For the latest information please visit www.massnurses.org, or call 781-830-5725.

Attend a safe staffing legislative briefing in your area

Your legislators will determine the future of the MNA safe staffing legislation. They need to hear from their BN constituents about what is happening on the frontlines of health care—so please go and share your story! A schedule of upcoming briefings is included in this issue of the newsletter. For the most current schedule of briefings, visit www.massnurses.org and click on the link for legislation and government affairs.

Contact your state senator and state representative

Call, write to or send an e-mail message to your legislators. Provide them with insight into your job as a front-line nurse. Tell them why you support safe staffing legislation. Share a personal story. A sample letter is included in this edition of the Mass Nurse. If you need to identify your legislators, visit the following Web site: www.wheredoivotema.com/bal/myelectioninfo.php.

Join the MNA activist e-mail network

Often the MNA needs to communicate with legislators quickly about pending bills. Members of the Rapid Response Network will be called on to communicate with legislators on important issues throughout the year. Contact Kate Anderson by e-mail at kanderson@mnarn.org to sign up.

Spread the word!

Talk to members in your bargaining unit and other colleagues about becoming activists with the MNA. Let other nurses know about opportunities to contact legislators, volunteer on campaigns and make their voices heard.

Sample letter/e-mail to legislators

The Honorable XXX XXX

Statehouse, Room XX

Boston, MA 02133

Dear Representative/Senator XXXX,

I am a registered nurse at XXX Hospital. I strongly support House Bill 1282 – the bill about safe staffing legislation. Understaffing of registered nurses is dangerous to patients. Risks, complication and errors are more likely to occur when nurses are asked to take care of too many patients at once. Each day I see first hand the negative effect that unsafe staffing is having on patient care, as well as on the recruitment and retention of nurses. Current staffing problems force nurses to work in situations where they are inappropriately rushed through their patient-care activities, assigned unsafe patient levels, and confronted by mandatory overtime.

Insert your personal account and/or story of how safe staffing would assist you in your job and improve patient care.

Passage of H.1282 is a promise to the nursing profession that workplace conditions will improve, that patient care will come first, and that we will once again be able to do our jobs properly. I hope you will join me in supporting H.1282. The return on investment in nursing will be reflected both in cost savings and in improvements in the safety and quality of care provided.

Sincerely,

XXXXXXX

MNA joins coalition to help the state’s most severely retarded citizens

Families, friends, community leaders and care givers gathered together twice during the month of April to show their support for keeping The Fernald Center—a Waltham-based facility that is home to 30 of the state’s most severely mentally retarded residents—up and running. At both a rally and petition drive, supporters voiced their opposition to Governor Romney’s proposed closure of the center.

The events were organized and hosted by the Massachusetts Coalition of Families and Advocates for the Retarded (COFAR) with support from numerous organizations, including the MNA.

Under the governor’s budget proposal, The Fernald Center—and eventually all the state facilities for the retarded—is slated for closure. Fernald is home to the most profoundly retarded, medically fragile and behaviorally challenged people in the commonwealth of Massachusetts. The center provides a menu of state-of-the-art services to its patients, including: access to specialized doctors and nurses; psychiatric professionals; physical-therapy resources; respiratory-therapy resources; occupational-therapy resources; speech and communications services; dental services and adaptive technologies. These services cannot be found or provided anywhere else.

Less than a week after the rally, family members and advocates for the retarded joined forces again when they delivered petitions containing more than 9,000 signatures from citizens who oppose the administration’s plans to close Fernald directly to the governor’s office.

The potential impact of the Fernald closure on residents

Under the governor’s budget proposal, The Fernald Center is slated for closure. This facility is home to the most profoundly retarded, medically fragile and behaviorally challenged people in Massachusetts. Fernald provides a menu of state-of-the-art services to its patients, including: access to specialized doctors and nurses; psychiatric professionals; physical-therapy resources; respiratory-therapy resources; occupational-therapy resources; speech and communications services; dental services and adaptive technologies. These services cannot be found or provided anywhere else.

Danny Onusseit has lived in The Fernald Center since the age of five. Both are classified as profoundly retarded. Still, Danny and Randy are 50-year-old twin brothers who have lived at Fernald. In one instance, his transfer would be better for him. On both occasions, changes were nothing short of devastating.

Danny has developed a leather-like quality. Eventually, Dianne says, his skin will tear. At the same time, Randy began spending more time wrapped in the fetal position, and suffering from multiple disabilities. Weighing just 65 pounds, Randy is oxygen dependent and is fed through a nasogastric tube; she has never walked or talked and has the mental capabilities of a 4-year-old. But according to Patty’s sister and long-time advocate for the mentally retarded, Cathy Gover, Patty is happy and thriving at The Fernald Center. Here, she has her own room and receives around the clock care from a team of professionals and staff who provide her with the highest quality of life possible for someone in her condition.

Ronnie and Randy Russo are 50-year-old twin brothers who have lived at Fernald since the age of five. Both are classifed as profoundly retarded, both are blind and both are unable to express themselves verbally. Dianne Booher, the twins’ sister, is their co-guardian and she works closely with her 71-year-old father in advocating and caring for them. Over the years, Dianne has watched her brothers try to “cope” with the changes that a shrinking mental-health budget have brought to Fernald—and the most recent changes were nothing short of devastating for the Russo brothers. Following the layoff of a Fernald nurse who had been caring for the twins for the last 17 years, Ronnie began to develop extremely agitated behaviors—constantly kicking and flailing. Shortly after, he was diagnosed with an upper-GI bleed which developed into a severe esophageal tear. At the same time, Randy began spending more time wrapped in the fetal position, while he continuously scratched and rubbed his skin. Eventually, Dianne says, his skin developed a leather-like quality.

The presentation of the petitions capped a morning of personal lobbying by COFAR members of legislators. Starting just after 9:30 a.m., some 40 individuals—most of who have family members living at Fernald and the other facilities—began walking the halls of the Statehouse, buttonholing legislators and their staff members in their offices, and handing out information opposing the closure plans.

The events at the Statehouse came as the House released its plan for closing a projected $3 billion state budget gap next year. The House budget legislation contained language accepting the administration’s plans to close unspecified facilities for the retarded. However, the House language would require that the community has adequate resources to provide equal or better services to residents transferred from the state facilities and that the cost of providing services in the community is lower than in the state facility.

The House bill also contained an outside section requiring the creation of a Fernald Developmental Center Land Reuse Committee, which would develop a plan for the Fernald site upon the closure of the facility. The plan would include a goal of creating new community residences at the Fernald site for former residents of the facility.

Currently, there are no community settings anywhere in the state that can provide equal or better care to Fernald residents. Questions and problems in the provision of care continue to plague the community-based system. In addition, studies have shown that comparable community-based care is not less expensive than state-based care.

What you can do help save The Fernald Center

Please consider contacting your state senator and/or representative about the proposed closure of Fernald. In addition, COFAR encourages you to:

1. Call Alison Mernio in Rep. Stanley’s office during the early part of the week - Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday—and thank him for the work he has done to keep Fernald open: 617-722-3275
2. Send a letter to the editor of your local newspaper praising the efforts by Rep. Stanley and Sen. Fargo to keep The Fernald Center open.

MNA urges DPH to suspend smallpox vaccine; proceed with educating and training workforce

In the wake of serious cardiac-related complications related to the vaccination of health care workers for the smallpox pre-event vaccination plan, as well as continued resistance by officials to support furloughing of vaccinated employees to protect the public, the MNA has made a formal request to the state Department of Public Health to suspend the vaccination plan until these issues are resolved. Instead, the MNA calls upon the state to proceed with the education and training of volunteers, without vaccinating at this time.

Eleven states have suspended their vaccination plan to date. In late April, the MNA sent a letter to DPH asking Massachusetts to join this list. Excerpts from the letter follows:

“We appreciate the ongoing dialogue with the DPH over these issues, our key concerns have yet to be adequately resolved. For example, it is clear there has been an effort to deal with the issue of compensation and liability for health care workers through federal legislation. However, the MNA’s most pressing concern, that of the need to furlough employees to protect patients from unwarranted exposure, has yet to be addressed on either the state or federal level.

“In light of the outstanding unresolved issues and the new concerns related to cardiac-related complications, the MNA is taking this opportunity to formally request that the DPH suspend the vaccination of civilian health care workers until these issues are adequately resolved. It is important to note that as of this writing, eleven other states have suspended their immunization programs.

“It is clear, given the extremely low level of participation by health care workers in the plan to date, that the program as constituted is not achieving its objectives. We further believe DPH needs to take a leadership role in redirecting this effort to ensure its ultimate success. Of greater concern is the fact that many health care facilities across the state are pushing ahead with vaccination campaigns while providing inadequate and confusing information. Were we to experience an event here in Massachusetts like that experienced in Maryland, there would be irreparable harm done to the state’s preparedness effort.”

The MNA believes it to be imperative for DPH to change the focus of the program to proceed with the education of the health care workforce and training of response teams for an emergency preparedness plan without vaccinating employees at this time. At such time that these issues are adequately resolved, or in the event of an actual smallpox event, the workforce would be ready to respond and begin the vaccination process.

For ongoing coverage of the smallpox issue, visit the MNA web site at www.massnurses.org.

CDC releases detailed information on SARS containment

As the number of confirmed SARS cases continues to climb globally, the MNA is vigilantly monitoring and communicating with other key healthcare organizations—including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention—to learn more about what health care providers need to know in order to identify, care for and treat people infected with SARS.

Recently, the CDC recommends the following infection-control measures for people living and/or working with suspected SARS patients. These recommendations are based on the experience in the United States to date and may be revised as more information becomes available.

• Patients with respiratory symptoms should be provided with surgical masks as a first measure of defense against the spread of droplet infections to healthcare personnel and others.
• SARS patients should limit interactions outside the home and should not go to work, school, out-of-home child care, or other public areas until ten days after the resolution of fever, provided respiratory symptoms are absent or improving.
• All members of a household with a SARS patient should carefully follow recommendations for hand hygiene, particularly after contact with body fluids.

So you think it’s safe at work? Notes from the Congress on Health and Safety

• Use of disposable gloves should be considered for any direct contact with body fluids of a SARS patient. However, gloves are not intended to replace proper hand hygiene.
• Sharing of eating utensils, towels, and bedding between SARS patients and others should be avoided, although such items can be used by others after routine cleaning. Environmental surfaces soiled by body fluids should be cleaned with a household disinfectant according to manufacturer’s instructions; gloves should be worn during this activity.
• Household waste soiled with body fluids of SARS patients, including facial tissues and surgical masks, may be discarded as normal waste.
• Household members and other close contacts of SARS patients should be actively monitored by the local health department for illness.
• Household members or other close contacts of SARS patients should watch for development of fever or respiratory symptoms and, if these develop, should seek healthcare evaluation. In advance of evaluation, healthcare providers should be informed that the individual is a close contact of a SARS patient. Household members or other close contacts with symptoms of SARS should follow the same precautions.
• At this time, in the absence of fever or respiratory symptoms, household members or other close contacts of SARS patients need not limit their activities outside the home.

For more information on SARS, please visit the CDC’s Web site at www.cdc.org, or the MNA’s Web site at www.massnurses.org.

Toxic exposure claims in the courtroom: Does Daubert do justice?

The Massachusetts Coalition for Occupational Safety and Health (MassCOSH) and MNA invite you to attend an environmental health forum.

The forum will be held on May 13, 4 - 7 p.m. at Northeastern University School of Law (located near the Ruggles subway stop) and will:
• Explore challenges to winning toxic workplace and environmental exposure cases.
• Examine strategies for overcoming obstacles created by the Supreme Court's decision: Daubert vs. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals.
• Present a mock hearing.
• Engage participants in small group discussions.

Registration forms can be obtained at the Massachusetts Nurses Association or you can register at the conference beginning at 3:30 p.m. For more information and to register, call Isabel Lopez, MassCOSH labor/community coordinator, 617-825-7233, extension 18. The cost for this event is $25.

Applying OSHA to Healthcare Settings program open to all nurses in Massachusetts

Three sessions of the Applying OSHA to Healthcare Settings program remain:
• May 14 at the Best Western Royal Plaza Hotel & Trade Center in Marlboro

The program qualifies for 4.4 contact hours, which will be awarded by the Massachusetts Nurses Association, which is an accredited provider of Continuing Education by the American Nurses Credentialing Center’s Commission on Accreditation.

To register, call Susan Clish in the MNA’s department of nursing at 781-830-5723.

Important date change: District 1’s session of Applying OSHA to Healthcare Settings

The date for the District 1 training has been changed from June 18 to June 24 in order to avoid conflict with the hearing at the Statehouse on the safe staffing legislation.

Massachusetts nurses and others who are latex allergic are encouraged to attend the hearing on the natural rubber latex glove bill scheduled for July 9

By Evelyn L. Bain, M.Ed., RN, COHN-S, Associate Director/Coordinator, Occupational Safety and Health Program

Across the commonwealth, nurses, dental hygienists, doctors, dentists, physical therapists, children and adults who have been repeatedly exposed to natural rubber latex gloves have become latex allergic. They are now at risk for reactions whenever they enter a medical or dental facility that continues to use latex gloves and other devices that contain natural rubber latex such as catheters, tubing and syringes. Often, they must plead their case for accommodation for latex-safe care, especially in small medical and dental offices. Addressing the issue through legislation will help to protect their health and improve their lives.

The true numbers of latex allergic persons in Massachusetts are not known. Here is an opportunity to come forward and be counted.

Details of Latex glove legislation

A Massachusetts bill has been drafted:

An Act Relative To Latex Glove Safety

A second Massachusetts bill has been filed and states:

The program qualifies for 5 nursing CEUs approved, 5 Pharmacy CEUs approved, 5 SH CEUs pending.

Advance registration is requested. Tickets are $50 in advance; $75 at the door. For more information call Susan Servais at 617-965-3711. Make checks payable and send to: Massachusetts Health Council, 4 Garrison Street, Newton, MA 02467.

No. 111 of the general laws is hereby amended by inserting after section 217 the following section:

The Rhode Island Department of Public Health subsequently developed regulations that relate to R23-73-LAT. In part, the regulations state:

The Rhode Island bill that successfully passed in the Rhode Island Legislature in 2001:

After two years of activity around the issue of latex allergy and a Latex Allergy Advisory Committee formed by former Attorney General Sheldon Whitehouse, the latex glove safety act in Rhode Island successfully passed in the Legislature.

The bill was prepared as a public health protection bill. The Rhode Island Department of Public Health subsequently developed regulations that relate to R23-73-LAT. In part, the regulations state:

• The use of disposable non-sterile and sterile natural rubber latex gloves is prohibited in food service.

• Any business or industry that utilizes natural rubber gloves must provide their workers with education related to latex allergy and provide non-latex gloves that minimize exposure to latex and protect health care workers from bloodstream pathogens.

• Must post a warning that states: WARNING Latex gloves are used in this facility. Repeated contact with latex may cause a latex allergy or may worsen a present latex allergy.

• Reactions to latex may include: skin rash, hives, asthma, nasal eye irritation, asthma, and shock. (4) that should you or your family experience allergic reaction symptoms, then you should contact your health care provider.

b) Said notice shall include letters which are at least three-eighths (3/8) of an inch high and posted in conspicuous areas throughout the facility.

c) Said notice shall be posted in English, Spanish, and other languages served by the health care facility.

(d) Health care workers shall be provided with initial and periodic education pertaining to latex safety.

(e) Health care facilities shall ensure that direct care workers are represented on latex allergy or safety committees.

(f) It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the Department of Public Health to enforce the provisions of this chapter and to prosecute all persons who violate this chapter.

and show legislators the truth about this problem and that latex allergies exist. It changes lives forever and it is unnecessary to continue to expose patients and workers. Gloves made of alternatives medical products are appropriate, they provide protection from bloodborne pathogens. Alternatives are available, and alternatives are affordable.

The glove manufacturers are already telling legislators that there really is no problem with latex gloves because they now make the gloves “safer.” They are telling legislators that “low powder,” “powderless,” and “low allergen” gloves protect from allergic reactions. They are giving the impression that these terms actually have meaning and credibility when there is no federal standard and no definition recognized for these terms.

But Massachusetts nurses and others needlessly affected by this allergy can tell a different story and give this issue the public recognition it deserves.

The voices of those who are affected by latex allergies have been repeatedly and systematically silenced by the money that the glove companies spend to sway the opinions of managers, purchasing agents, the public and policy makers. They have money to send teams of carefully programmed sales representatives and lawyers to every public hearing in attempts to intimidate those who speak against latex gloves and the hazards they introduce. And their money has been effective in killing latex glove legislation in many states across the country.

There is no better way to make legislators and the public aware of the problems that latex allergies continue to create than by participating in this public hearing. Imagine what would happen if hundreds of people showed up at the Statehouse to focus attention on the fact that lives have been severely and permanently affected by needless exposure to a product that can be replaced by an appropriate alternative.

This would send the same message to Massachusetts lawmakers that NIOSH sent to health care workers across the country in 1997: “WARNING: Exposure to natural rubber latex presents a hazard to the health of the citizens, workers and patients of Massachusetts.”

Let’s do something about it now.

RN’s needed for research study on career transitioning

Sara Grant, a doctoral student from New York University, is seeking registered nurses for a study on career transitioning. She is seeking nurses who:

• Have been in their current job for at least a year but no more than two years
• Moved between like organizations (for example, currently work in a hospital and came directly from a hospital)
• One or both of the organizations is in the for-profit sector
• The study consists of a phone interview and two short questionnaires, and is expected take no more than an hour. Participants will receive $25.

The study will examine the tactics that nurses use to learn about the organizations; what is important for nurses to learn about the organizations; what is different in their present organization compared to their former organization; and how their identification with their present organization changed during their first year in the job. This study aims to help organizations better train and support their newly recruited nurses.

If you meet the study criteria and want to participate, please send an e-mail to Saraagran80@aol.com or sgr1@nyu.edu.

Over 350 senior nursing students participate in transition programs

In April, the MNA sponsored three educational programs for senior nursing students entitled “The Real Nursing Work: Transition from Student to RN.” The programs were designed to provide senior nursing students with strategies for transitioning from student to professional nurse, as well as offer an exclusive job fair for new graduate nurses. The programs were held April 3 in Worcester, April 8 in Randolph and April 9 in Springfield. The MNA has offered this program for a number of years and the response from faculty and students increases annually. This year’s attendees were enthusiastic and eager to learn from the panel of recent graduates, education professionals and employment specialists. The programs were seen as a huge success by the students and their enthusiasm was reflected in their evaluations.

The resounding theme of each of the events was that, although the nursing market is quite open with ample opportunities for new graduates, the present workplace conditions will present some new challenges for the graduate nurse. The MNA’s transition programs assist new graduates in meeting these challenges. Each of the programs consisted of a panel presentation and discussion with recent graduates who have successfully transitioned into the role of professional nurse. Experienced nurses were also on the panel to talk about interview strategies, what to look for in an orientation program, and how to evaluate workplace settings. Participants were given ample time to have their specific questions answered. Handouts for the participants included a guide to interview strategies, as well as a sample cover letter and resume.

The programs were free of charge to all senior nursing students and instructors. Area hospitals and other healthcare facilities also participated in the program by telling attendees about orientation programs and employment opportunities. This mini job fair proved to be a successful recruitment venue for many nurse recruiters in the area.

The MNA has hosted this program for a number of years, but this year’s effort made it possible for more than 350 senior nursing students to share in this exciting opportunity and take full advantage of this timely learning experience. Flats are already in process for the MNA’s 2004 transition programs. If you would like more information about this opportunity, contact Carole Kwiecz, RN, MSN, associate director in the MNA’s Department of Nursing at 781-830-5755 or by e-mail, cmallia@mnarn.org.

MNA district leaders hold summit on new structure

In an effort to better serve its membership, the elected leaders of the five MNA districts met last month for a summit meeting to discuss the potential reorganizing the organization’s regional structure.

The MNA is currently divided into five districts, each of which covers a different region of the state. For example, District 1 of MNA encompasses nurses who live in Western Massachusetts—from Hampden County to the New York border. A portion of MNA membership dues go to the district to which a nurse belongs. The districts currently serve as a localized structure within MNA to help nurses in those regions pursue initiatives specific to them.

The district structure has existed since 1930, and little or no change has been made to it during that 70 year period. As part of the discussion about reorganizing, district leaders will review the regional structures and explore opportunities to reorganize the districts according to size, make up, funding allocations, functions and purposes.

The group will complete its analysis by the beginning of June. From this, proposed bylaw changes may come forward for debate and a vote by the membership at the October convention.

Benefits Corner

Save on Six Flags New England admission

The Massachusetts Nurses Association is offering discount admission tickets to the Six Flags New England Amusement Park in Agawam, Mass. Members can purchase tickets directly from the MNA for $22 per person as opposed to the regular price of $39.99—providing MNA members with a $17.99 savings per person. This is the lowest individual admission price offered for any operating day during the 2003 season and tickets are purchased ahead of time—so there is no waiting in line at the front gate.

Tickets can be purchased at the MNA’s Canton office or by calling Chris Stetkiewicz at 781-831-4625, extention 726. Quantities are limited, so passes are available on a first-come basis.
The skinny on nursing salaries: professional publication finds that unionized nurses earn more

In its Feb. 10 edition, Advance For Nurses— one of the industry’s leading professional publications— reported the results of its annual salary survey and found that unionized nurses in hospital settings earned, on average, $2.64 more per hour than their non-unionized peers. In addition, Massachusetts was ranked second when it came to the highest hourly wages paid to nurses.

In the past 18 months, nurses with 20 years of service.

In addition, Massachusetts was ranked second when it came to the highest hourly wages paid to nurses.

The MNA bargaining unit at Dana Farber Cancer Institute ratified an agreement on April 16 for a new two-year contract that will expire in 2005. This settlement will provide for the highest contractual rates in the state. The salary increases for staff/nurses are: • 5 percent April 13, 2003 • A new 5 percent step Oct. 12, 2003 • 5 percent April 11, 2004 • 2 percent Oct. 10, 2004 The base hourly rate for a staff nurse at the top of the salary scale will increase by almost 18 percent over the two years of the agreement. By October of 2004 a staff nurse at the top of the scale will be making over $113,000 per year ($54.60 per hour, which, as of this date, is the highest MNA contractual rate). Additional economic improvements called for the following:

- Increasing off shift differential from $1.40 to $2.80, $3.20 if permanent evening (i.e., three or more consecutive months).
- Increase paid professional or conference days from three to five paid days per year over the life of the contract, (i.e., increase from three to four in first year; five in second year).
- Increase on-call pay from $4.50 to $5.00 in second year.

Many nurses do not regularly work overtime. Of those that do, 74 percent earned $2.64 more per hour, outpatient nurses earned $5.21 more per hour and school nurses earned $5.45 more per hour. Other employment settings that were surveyed included community health centers, long-term care facilities, private practices and specialty hospitals.

In addition, unionization was identified as having a positive impact on mandatory overtime. Of the respondents who said they regularly work overtime, 74 percent were non-union RNs. Meanwhile, only 35 percent of union-affiliated RNs said they regularly work overtime. Advance for Nurses commented that, “those numbers could reflect growing attention by nursing organizations and unions to limit mandatory OT.”

Merrimack Valley Hospital reaches contract settlement

In March, after 17 months of negotiations, the RNs at Merrimack Valley Hospital, formerly Hale Hospital, ratified their first contract with Essent HealthCare—a for-profit company based in Tennessee. The RNs had a long fight to earn a fair contract, but won substantial contract provisions on mandatory overtime, protection of insurance coverage, floating, and grievance/arbitration rights. The RNs will receive a 4 percent increase in wages in each of the first two years of the contract and will have a step system in place during 2004.

MNA Contract Update

MNA's registered nurses at Lawrence General Hospital cast an overwhelming vote on April 7 to ratify a new two-year contract that improves nurses’ working conditions, facilitates higher quality patient care and provides Lawrence General Hospital with a salary scale to recruit and retain nurses to the facility.

The new contract provides an across-the-board increase of 6 percent (3 percent retroactive to October 2002 and 3 percent in April 2003) and another 3 percent in the second year (3 percent in October 2004 and 2 percent in April 2005), while also providing a new 3 percent anniversary step increase for nurses with 20 years of service.

The contract includes important language the nurses sought to prevent the use of mandatory on-call in non-traditional areas. On-call will only be allowed in the traditional areas where it has existed in the past. Additionally, the contract also includes language that ensures new nurses cannot be assigned “charge nurse” duties and specifies that any nurse assigned these duties will have been at the facility for at least one year and will have undergone a three-month orientation. As a result, charges nurses will have at least 15 months experience.

MNA members at Lawrence General Hospital also won language preventing nurses age 62 or older from having to rotate shifts and language granting nurses scheduled to work 24 hours or more an extra day of bereavement leave.

MNA, Dana Farber settlement ratified

The MNA bargaining unit at Dana Farber Cancer Institute ratified an agreement on April 16 for a new two-year contract that will expire in 2005. This settlement will provide for the highest contractual rates in the state. The salary increases for staff/nurses are:

- 5 percent April 13, 2003
- A new 5 percent step Oct. 12, 2003
- 5 percent April 11, 2004
- 2 percent Oct. 10, 2004

The base hourly rate for a staff nurse at the top of the salary scale will increase by almost 18 percent over the two years of the agreement. By October of 2004 a staff nurse at the top of the scale will be making over $113,000 per year ($54.60 per hour, which, as of this date, is the highest MNA contractual rate).

- Increase on-call pay from $4.50 to $5.00 in second year.

Massachusetts nurses were the second highest paid nurses of those surveyed, earning on average $29.25 per hour. New York earned the first-place slot by paying its nurses $32.65 per hour, while New Jersey ranked third with its nurses earning an hourly wage of $28.96. Facility type was also identified as having an influence on salary. Specifically, the survey found there was a significant difference in pay for nurses working in non-profit versus for-profit facilities. Overall, non-profit nurses earned about $4 more per hour than their for-profit counterparts - $28.94 as opposed to $24.74 an hour — although nurses working in VA or military settings earned the lowest hourly wage at $24.11.

The discovery that for-profit facilities generally offer lower salaries did not surprise the MNA. “Some of our toughest fights are with for-profits,” said Pickham. “They are much more likely to look at the bottom line and then hold the line in terms of salary and benefits.”

Why I joined the union: one RN’s view

By Michelle McGrath

Michelle McGrath, an MNA member at St. Vincent's Hospital in Worcester, recently wrote to tell the Massachusetts Nurse about why she joined the union. Michelle's activism as both a staff nurse and as a union member has been invaluable to St. Vincent's bargaining unit. She was one of a four-member nurse delegation that delivered a petition to the hospital's chief nursing officer protesting unsafe staffing conditions, and she has attended several sessions in support of the negotiating committee. Michelle is both a dedicated nurse and union member.

I joined the union because I felt that, in order for my voice to be heard as an employee of a large corporation, I needed the unity and support of my peers.

The union exists to meet the needs of its members. The MNA’s organizations do not choose the issues that the union will help its members to negotiate. The issues are raised by the members. All members are allowed and encouraged to express their opinions and desires.

Union officers are voted for by the members. The officers volunteer their time and encouraged to express their opinions and desires.

Celebrate nursing excellence

Honor your peers with a nomination for 2003 MNA awards

One of the greatest honors one can achieve is the recognition of one’s peers. In this fast-changing health care system in which nurses daily strive to carry out their duties to their patients, there is very little time for them to acknowledge their own professional accomplishments and those of their peers.

The MNA awards, established by the membership with the approval of the MNA Board of Directors, offer all members an opportunity to recognize nurses who by their commitment and outstanding achievements have honored us all. These are often ordinary nurses accomplishing extraordinary things. They are the nurses who challenge us all to achieve excellence.

For detailed information on selection criteria and to receive a nomination packet, call Susan Clish, MNA Department of Labor Relations, 781-830-5723 or toll free, 800-882-2056, x723.
